
The Local Species Project

Community Art Meets Ecology

This spring, the UVa Arts Board and the UVa Art Museum will sponsor visiting artist Alberto Rey and his "Local Species" Project. "Local Species" documents endangered fish and investigates the relation of eco-systems to local culture – humans being another local species.

Young artists will first explore the ecology of rivers and streams. They will then create collaborative book projects that incorporate writing, drawing, linoleum block cutting and printing, hand coloring, and book-binding.

Be a part of this cross-community and inter-species project.

Workshop schedule for young printers

Young Printers (grades 7–12)	Younger Printers (grades 4–6)
six sessions:	six sessions:
Thursdays 4–6 pm	Saturdays 10–noon
February 9–March 16	February 11–March 18

A $100 fee covers the cost of all six sessions and materials. Need-based full fellowships covering the cost are available—see our website for info.

for info & registration: www.virginia.edu/artmuseum/localspecies

Sponsored by: the UVA Arts Board, the UVa Art Museum, the McIntire Department of Art, the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities, The Bridge Progressive Arts Initiative, and the Virginia Arts of the Book Center

University of Virginia | Art Museum