AGENDA

• REPORT BY THE VICE PRESIDENT AND CHIEF OFFICER FOR DIVERSITY AND EQUITY (Dr. Martin)
  o School of Medicine Strategic Plan for Diversity and Inclusion (Dr. Martin to introduce Dr. Randolph Canterbury and Dr. Michael Moxley; Drs. Canterbury and Moxley to report) DISCUSSION: Dr. Martin, Vice President and Chief Officer for Diversity and Equity, will introduce Dr. Randolph Canterbury, Senior Associate Dean, and Dr. Michael Moxley, Associate Dean of Diversity, both in the School of Medicine. Drs. Canterbury and Moxley will report on the School of Medicine Strategic Plan for Diversity and Inclusion.

Randolph J. Canterbury

R. J. (Randy) Canterbury, M.D., M.S. is the Wilford W. Spradlin Professor of Psychiatry and Neurobehavioral Science and of Internal Medicine at the University of Virginia School of Medicine, where he also serves as the Senior Associate Dean for Education. Dr. Canterbury received the M.S. and M.D. degrees from West Virginia University. He completed his postgraduate training in psychiatry and internal medicine at the University of Virginia—being the first resident to complete a combined residency in those two specialties. He is certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine, the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology in Psychiatry with Added Qualifications in Psychosomatic Medicine, and by the American Society of Addiction Medicine. He is a member of Alpha Omega Alpha, a Distinguished Life Fellow of the American Psychiatric Association, a Fellow of the Academy of Psychosomatic Medicine, and is a co-founder and past president of the Association of Medicine and Psychiatry. He is a reviewer for several journals in both psychiatry and internal medicine, and since 1995 he has been affiliated with the National Board of Medical Examiners where he is involved in the United States Medical Licensing Examination (USMLE) development and physician competency assessment. He has been voted among the “Top Doctors in America” in psychiatry for the past several years.
Dr. Canterbury joined the School of Medicine faculty in 1984 in the Departments of Internal Medicine and Psychiatry. For 14 years, he taught the second year medical school course in psychiatric medicine and taught a medical interviewing course to internal medicine residents. He also was the founding director of the University’s Institute for Substance Abuse Studies and served in that capacity until 1994. He served as chair of the Department of Psychiatric Medicine for 12 years. He has served as principal investigator on many grants from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and from the U.S. Department of Education, including federal funding for curriculum development, implementation, and evaluation. While his clinical work in his early years was in addiction medicine, today his clinical focus is on patients with mood and anxiety disorders, particularly brain stimulation techniques. After leaving the role of department chair, Dr. Canterbury joined the Dean’s Office as the Associate Dean for Admissions. During his tenure in that role, the School of Medicine enjoyed a dramatic increase both in the academic credentials and diversity of enrolling students. Over a period of several years, Dr. Canterbury oversaw the building of the Claude Moore Medical Education Building and the development and implementation of the Next Generation Curriculum for the School of Medicine.

Michael D. Moxley, M.D.

Michael D. Moxley, M.D., is an Associate Professor in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology/Internal Medicine, Director and PI of the Summer Medical and Dental Education Program, and Associate Dean for Diversity and Medical Education at the School of Medicine.

Dr. Moxley obtained his undergraduate and medical school degrees at the University of Virginia. His hometown is Louisville, Kentucky. Dr. Moxley completed his residency at the University of Rochester’s Strong Memorial Hospital, in Rochester, New York. After spending three years as an attending physician at St. Agnes Hospital in Baltimore, serving the underserved populations, he took a faculty position at Georgetown. He then came full circle back to U.Va. as Assistant Professor of OB/GYN and eventually Assistant Dean before becoming Associate Dean in the School of Medicine. As part of Dr. Moxley’s faculty responsibilities, he is Associate Residency Director and is involved in the Ryan White Clinic. In his role in the Dean’s Office, Dr. Moxley directs the University’s Summer Medical and Dental Education Program for disadvantaged students.
Dr. Moxley is trained in General Obstetrics and Gynecology, with interests including hysteroscopy, HIV disease, and minimally invasive surgery.

In 1997, Dr. Moxley became certified by the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology and since then has attained numerous honors and achievements. In 2003, he received the Excellence in Teaching Award presented by the Association of Professors of Obstetrics and Gynecology and the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Georgetown University School of Medicine. In 2009 and 2010 he was recognized as one of America’s Best Doctors. He graduated from the APGO Academic Scholars and Leaders Program of the APGO/CREOG Program Director’s School in 2010. He received the Excellence in Teaching Award presented by the Association of Professors of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of Virginia School of Medicine in 2011 and in 2012 was named one of America’s Top Obstetricians and Gynecologists. Currently, he is a Liaison for the ACOG Committee on Professional Liability.

Furthermore, Dr. Moxley serves as a mentor to pre-med students and provides advice to groups such, as the Daniel Hale Williams Pre-Med Society and the combined SNMA/DHW/Minority Nursing Student Group that coordinates the CHS Medical Sciences Club. He also helped to establish the National Medical Association Chapter at U.Va. The Health System Diversity Consortium, established in 2013, grew out of the School of Medicine Diversity Task Force under Dr. Moxley’s leadership.
The Diversity Consortium meets on a monthly basis addressing issues of recruitment, retention, and environment for diverse populations in the Health System including students, residents, faculty, and staff.
