

Section 26

Public Rights-of-Way Use Fee, 2000

The Code of Virginia Section §56-468.1 authorizes certain localities to charge rights-of-way use fees for the use of publicly owned telephone lines by certified telecommunication firms. Cities and towns whose public streets are not maintained by the Virginia Department of Transportation, as well as any county that has chosen to withdraw from the secondary system of state highways, may impose a Public Rights-of-Way Use Fee by local ordinance. This fee is in exchange for the use of the locality's electric poles or electric conduits by certified providers of telecommunications services.

The provider collects the use fee on a per access line basis by adding the fee to each end-user's monthly bill for local exchange telephone service (§56-468-1.G). The fee should be stated separately on the phone bill.

The Code (§56-468.1.I) permits any locality with an existing franchise agreement or ordinance allowing the use of the public rights-of-way, prior to July 1, 1998, to continue enforcing the existing agreement providing that the county, city, or town does not discriminate among telecommunications providers and does not adopt any additional rights-of-way practices that do not comply with current laws. The Public Rights-of-Way Fee cannot be imposed in such localities.

Currently, 11 cities, 2 counties, and 7 towns report imposing the fee, while 4 counties and 10 towns report being ineligible to impose it on telecommunication providers.
