

Section 12

Cable Television System Tax, 2002

The Code of Virginia, §15.2-2108, grants local governments the authority to levy a license tax or franchise fee, or to issue certificates of public convenience and necessity to one or more cable television systems. However, in order to issue more than one license, franchise, or certificate of public convenience, the governing body must hold a public hearing to determine if the public welfare will be enhanced by additional awards. The public hearing should take testimony concerning “the economic consideration, the impact on private property rights, the impact on public convenience, the public need and potential benefit,” and other factors that may be relevant.

Section 58.1-3818.3 of the Code of Virginia authorizes counties, cities, and towns to levy a video programming excise tax on cable television providers not otherwise subject to local fees or taxes on gross receipts. The rate cannot exceed 5 percent. The Code authorizes providers to pass on to end-user subscribers itemized line charges.

This is in accordance with the United States Code, title 47, section 542 (section 622 of the Cable Act), that requires that a franchise fee be no more than 5 percent of the cable operator’s annual gross revenue. Cable operators are permitted to pass franchise fees through to subscribers. However, the U.S. Code states that “any cable operator shall pass through to subscribers the amount of any decrease in a franchise fee.”

Table 12.1 presents the local franchise fees and local excise taxes on cable television companies for the 25 cities, 44 counties, and 110 towns that reported them in effect during the 2002 tax year. The tax ranges from 3 percent to 5 percent in the cities. The median charge for cities is 5 percent for each of the two taxes. For counties, the franchise fees range from 0.5 percent (Floyd County) to 5 percent with the medians at 3 percent for each tax. The median fee for towns stands at 3.3 percent for the franchise fee and 3.0 percent for the excise tax, with local fees ranging anywhere from 0.25 percent (Pound) to 5 percent.
