There is no more powerful example of the liberal arts graduate than the future elementary school teacher. No other graduate must continue to think seriously about so many subjects, so many kinds of knowledge, so many kinds of intellectual skills. The University is reconsidering its Arts & Sciences curriculum with the future school teacher as our standard.

Full story

Are teachers prepared to lead multicultural classrooms? Newly hired assistant professor Selena Cozart is considering that question as part of her post with U.Va.'s Teachers for a New Era project.

Full story in Inside UVa

Teacher Education Professor Eleanor Wilson describes the effects of TNE on her work

Faculty benefit. UVa students who are preparing to be teachers benefit. And pupils benefit.

Full story

How to get involved

Resources for New Teachers
Resources for Students
Year Two Mini-Grants
Contact us

TNE program sponsors
List of sponsors

Information about the grant from the Carnegie Corporation