As a leader among public institutions, the University of Virginia supports research, scholarship and creativity in many fields. The excellence of Arts & Sciences research and scholarship in the humanities and the physical, social and biomedical sciences is widely recognized among peer institutions. A significant amount of external sponsorship for research, including competitively awarded federal grants, is awarded to Arts & Sciences researchers each year, reaching close to $46 million in a recent year (about one-quarter of the total for the University). Over a dozen special centers and institutes offer students the opportunity to work with faculty on topics of current social and scientific concern or scholarly interest.

Projects

Galactic Mergers and Acquisitions

Astronomer finds two supermassive black holes heading for a collision.

More...

Undergraduate Researchers

Undergrads pursue research in wide variety of disciplines.

More...

Is candor best?

Telling the story of Colonial Williamsburg is complicated.

More...