Terms of Understanding for Parents of High School Summer Session Students

Summer Session High School students at the University of Virginia are subject to all University regulations stated in the Summer Session catalog. These regulations may be changed at any time by the appropriate authority. The University reserves the right to suspend, enforce the withdrawal of, or expel a student whose academic work is unsatisfactory or who violates the University's standards of conduct or other regulations. Students who reside in University Housing are subject to the appropriate rules and regulations governing their living environment.

Since most of our summer high school students are under eighteen (and since our advisory services and support staff are intended to serve college-age students), we insist that parents review University of Virginia regulations with their children so that both parents and students are aware of those policies designed to protect students and to guide their behavior. We have done our best to provide advisory services and support staff for all students; however, we remind parents that we cannot protect students against every threat to their well-being. Students must learn to take responsibility for their own behavior.

After you have read the above terms and reviewed the University Regulations viewed on the University's website www.virginia.edu/registrar/records/ugradrec/chapter5/chapter5-2.htm please sign in the spaces provided below and return with your other application material. We cannot act on your application until we receive this form.

University of Virginia - The Honor System

Founded in 1842, the Honor System is one of the University's most cherished institutions. Based on the principle that University students want to be trusted, the Honor System helps create and strengthen a school-wide community of trust.

Students at the University make a commitment not to lie, cheat or steal within Charlottesville, Albemarle County, or where they represent themselves as University students in order to gain the trust of others. Because they have made this commitment, students are trusted by peers, faculty members, administrators, and community residents alike. Students conduct themselves with integrity and are presumed honorable until proven otherwise.

Students are recruited and trained by the Honor Committee to serve as advisors and to provide counsel. Students investigate Honor allegations, assist and support accused students through the Honor process, and work with accused students in their defense at trial. Honor jury panels are similarly comprised entirely of students. While anyone may initiate Honor proceedings, the process is administered entirely by students.

The vitality of the Honor System depends upon the willingness of students to uphold the high standards set by their peers. When a student is formally accused of an Honor offense following investigation, that student may elect to either (1) leave the University, without requesting a trial (in which case that student will be deemed to have admitted guilt, whether or not such an admission is expressly made), or (2) request an Honor trial. Any student found guilty of an Honor offense, or deemed to have admitted guilt after having left without requesting a trial, will be permanently dismissed from the University. The notation "enrollment discontinued" will be placed on the student's transcript, without specific reference to the Honor proceedings. In the case of a student found guilty of an Honor offense following graduation, or deemed to have admitted guilt without requesting a trial after graduation, the General Faculty of the University may undertake proceedings to revoke that student's degree. The rules of the Honor System apply to any person who was a University student at the time an alleged Honor offense was committed, so long as a case is initiated within two years thereafter.

All students who enroll at the University, including those attending summer session only, benefit from the freedom and security provided by the Honor System; every student must agree to live by and support the spirit of honor. Applicants who are not prepared to embrace this freedom and accept this responsibility should not apply for admission.

This is intended as a brief summary of some important aspects of the University's Honor System. For more information, visit www.virginia.edu/honor. If you have further questions, please call the Committee at (434) 924-7602.

All summer session students who have not previously attended the University in residence within the past calendar year will attend scheduled meetings in which the meaning of the System is discussed. More information about the mandatory Honor Orientation Sessions will be available at www.virginia.edu/summer.

The Honor Committee, June 2004

The University of Virginia Honor System Pledge

I have read the above explanation of the Honor System. I understand that as a student enrolled at the University of Virginia I will be participating in this system. I agree to support and abide by the Honor System, which prohibits lying, cheating, and stealing. I understand and accept that the Honor System is administered entirely by student representatives, including investigations, adjudications, and appeal review, and that violations will result in permanent expulsion and revocation of any University degree.
