

Stephanie A. Johnson is a 1993 graduate of the College of Arts and Sciences with a dual degree in English and Theatre. She is also a graduate of the Howard University School of Law in Washington, DC, where she served as an Article Editor for the Howard Law Journal. After graduating from law school, Ms. Johnson was, and continues to be, licensed to practice law in the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Ms. Johnson served as the Law Clerk for the Honorable Chief Judge Eugene N. Hamilton (retired) of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. From there, she moved to a position at Arnold & Porter, where she worked in products liability and multi-district litigation matters.

After her law firm stint, Ms. Johnson changed her career focus to academia. She was appointed as the Special Assistant to the Interim Dean of the Law School, and continued to work as the Special Assistant to the Associate Dean of Academic Affairs after a permanent dean was chosen. During that time, Ms. Johnson was also appointed as an adjunct professor at the School of Law.

Ms. Johnson currently serves as the Director of the Laureate Scholar Program and Undergraduate Programs of Excellence at Howard University, under the auspices of the Office of the Provost. She is charged with the recruitment and retention of the National Achievement Scholars and Laureate Scholars, coordinates the Amgen Scholars Program, and works on a variety of other projects large and small. She is pleased and honored to be a part of the Alumni Diversity Advisory Committee of the University of Virginia.
